Dear Gordon,

Apologies for the delay. Thank you for responding to the reviewers comments that was most helpful of you. We are moving on with the issue and you will hear from either us or Local Economy soon.

Best wishes

John

Dear John

I attach an amended version of our paper that attempts to respond to the main comments made by referees.

Apologies it is on the deadline, but just recovering from flu!

Best wishes

Gordon

Dear Gordon,

Many thanks. I think that if you address the main points then that will be fine. Am happy to talk you through this after the break if that's ok?

And hope you enjoy some time off.

Very best wishes
John

Dear John,

Apologies but I have only had a chance now to read carefully the referees' comments on our paper.

I am pleased that you still wish to publish, and I currently believe a re-draft could be with you at the end of January.

However, before starting this, I would like some clarification and advice on how to respond.

In our first discussions about making a contribution to the Special Issue I was assuming that this was not an 'academic' paper or a 'research' paper but rather an account of practice or a viewpoint from practice. This obviously influenced the content and style of writing, and the ambition of the paper.

In light of the comments, I am now unsure if this is still the case. Either the paper just requires some of the key points to be addressed, OR do the comments and your own advice indicate a major revision to bring this in line with more academic contributions?

Your advice would be appreciated.

Best wishes for Christmas

Regards

Gordon

Dear Gordon,

Many apologies in getting back to you with the reviewers comments on your paper for Local Economy. We do want to include your paper and you will see that both reviewers are suggesting changes and additions to the paper. We hope that you will be able to address these by the end of January. If that is ok we look forward to seeing your paper then.

Thank you very much for joining us in this themed issue of Local Economy.

Best wishes

Dear Gordon,

We are finishing sending papers out for review and I know you sent us this in July. But I don't seem to have a clean final copy. Please could you send me one ? Thank you. We are anticipating publishing the special issue next Spring or early Summer.

Many thanks

John

Dear Lee

Many thanks for all your helpful comments and suggestions, the majority of which I have incorporated or responded to.

I attach a marked-up version of the paper, as well as a clean final copy.

Happy to respond to any further queries etc.

Best regards

Gordon

Dear Gordon

Thanks for the submission, which I enjoyed reading as it makes a notable contribution from a more practical stance.

I've flagged up a few points on the attached and made a few suggestions, although all are relatively minor. Once you've had an opportunity to consider these, please email me your final version and I will submit it for editorial team approval.

Best regards

Lee

Dear Lee

Apologies for resubmitting, but following further discussions with the other authors please find a final draft of our piece on the Sheffield Fairness Commission which we hope might be suitable for your special edition.

Please contact me if you have any queries etc.

Best regards

Gordon
