

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

This is a repository copy of The Politics of Memory and Territoriality in Everyday life in the Northern Ireland Troubles.

White Rose Research Online URL for this paper:
<http://eprints.whiterose.ac.uk/125435/>

Version: Presentation

Conference or Workshop Item:

Selim, G orcid.org/0000-0001-6061-5953 The Politics of Memory and Territoriality in Everyday life in the Northern Ireland Troubles. In: Memory Studies Association Second Annual Conference, 14-16 Dec 2017, Copenhagen, Denmark.

Reuse

Items deposited in White Rose Research Online are protected by copyright, with all rights reserved unless indicated otherwise. They may be downloaded and/or printed for private study, or other acts as permitted by national copyright laws. The publisher or other rights holders may allow further reproduction and re-use of the full text version. This is indicated by the licence information on the White Rose Research Online record for the item.

Takedown

If you consider content in White Rose Research Online to be in breach of UK law, please notify us by emailing eprints@whiterose.ac.uk including the URL of the record and the reason for the withdrawal request.

eprints@whiterose.ac.uk
<https://eprints.whiterose.ac.uk/>

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

The Politics of Memory and Territoriality in Everyday life in the Northern Ireland Troubles

Gehan Selim

Lecturer in Architecture

University of Leeds

g.selim@leeds.ac.uk

Do You See What I See?

The Cost of the Troubles: Young People's experience of the Troubles in NI

The Troubles...

My first memory was when my aunt got shot... It frightened me, so it did. She was only home from visiting my granny in England, and she was walking around the corner to me aunt's house. She got shot dead... I.R.A. crossfire... Well, you 're afraid to go out, in case you get shot dead, so you are.

...Last year was the first time I grieved my dad being dead. Twenty-nine years of age... I actually felt, you know cried about it...

No one expected it (the bomb)... A wee lad that I hang about with, his grand dad owned that shop that it happened in. His grandad died... And the fellow down the street, he just found it very hard to cope with... And he got ill and all for a while, so he did. Everybody was just taken aback by it... because the people who were killed in it were so young, so they were...

'Postmemory' and Segregation: The Other and Us

Cein Alex, 2008
Aged 7

Lee Young, 2008
Aged 8, lived just 200 yards from Cein on the other side of the wall but had never met him

Young People Living in Derry

LONDONDERRY
WEST BANK
LOYALISTS STILL UNDER SIEGE
NO SURRENDER

WELCOME TO THE FOUNTAIN

DISABLED

DISABLED

DISABLED

13'6"

4.1m

WELCOME TO THE FOUNTAIN

THIS GATE IS LOCKED AT 9.00PM
ALTERNATE EXITS AT WAPPING LANE OR HAWKIN STREET

The estate contains a number of historic buildings and attractions including:

The Heritage Tower containing many World War I/II artefacts

The Thiepval Gallery – the social history of the Estate over the last 100 years
Open daily (Mon-Sat) 10am – 4pm

WALKING TOURS ALSO AVAILABLE –
DETAILS AVAILABLE IN HERITAGE TOWER

It's just a nightmare that never goes away

Everyone involved is going to be sore.

They are going to remember the last time they spoke to the person that didn't come home.

Memorising the past

Droppin' Well bar in Ballykelly
6 December 1982

Memorising the past

Memorising the past

Mural of Bloody Sunday in the Bogside.

MEMORY SCAPES: (RE)IMAGINING the spatial

'We attend the parades the same as others and so aren't restricted from celebrating our culture'

The Annual Orange Order Parades the 12th July every year.

'we have a siege mentality but sometimes we feel that we are under real siege'

Thank you

Gehan Selim
University of Leeds
g.selim@leeds.ac.uk

Publications:

Selim, G. (2015) The Landscape of Differences: Contact and Segregation in the Everyday Encounters, Cities. 46, pp. 16 – 25.

Abdelmonem, M. & Selim, G. (2018) Architectural, Space and Memory of Resurrection in Northern Ireland, London: Routledge (in Press).