INTRODUCTION

This edition of Matthew Locke’s copies of Italian music in his autograph manuscript British Library (Lbl) Add. MS 31437 began life as an intended Appendix to a forthcoming edition of Locke’s small-scale sacred music.<sup>1</sup> However, it soon became apparent that the quantity of Locke’s small-scale sacred music precluded the possibility of an additional Appendix. There are, though, reasons why an edition of Locke’s copies of Italian music should be published separately: 1) the sheer quality of the music which Locke chose from printed sources available to him while he was resident in the Low Countries in *c.*1648; 2) the information that the copies offer to scholars for the study of the influence on, and the development of, Locke’s own concertato style of writing (for example, the vocal textures; the melodic figurations; use of triple metre; and harmonic procedures); and 3) the fact that Locke’s manuscript contains unique music by Francesco Costanzo da Cosenza copied from his now lost second book of motets.

THE COPYIST: MATTHEW LOCKE (*c.*1622–1677)

Matthew Locke was born, most likely in Exeter, in *c.*1622 (inferred from the inscription ‘aetatis 40 | anno domini 1662’ on the portrait of Locke given to the Oxford Music School and now in the Faculty of Music, Oxford).<sup>2</sup> He was a choirboy at Exeter Cathedral and it is likely that he was taught by the master of the choristers, Edward Gibbons (the elder brother of Orlando), by the organist John Lugge, and by William Wake, a lay vicar.<sup>3</sup> Locke left his mark at the cathedral with two carved inscriptions on the organ screen: ‘MATHEW LOCK | 1638’ and ‘ML | 1641’. In 1640 he was paid 31s and 10s 6d for ‘pricking services’ – the same year that he and Richard Carter were censured by the dean and chapter for fighting.<sup>4</sup> Locke’s whereabouts during the Civil War is unknown but he probably remained in Exeter and it may therefore be significant, given Locke’s later conversion to Catholicism, that in 1644, during the period when the city had returned to Royalist control, Charles I’s Roman Catholic Queen, Henrietta Maria, was present in the city (where she gave birth to her ninth child, Henrietta Anne). We next hear of Locke in the Low Countries where he joined the exiled English royal household: a section of Locke’s autograph manuscript Lbl Add. MS 31437 bears the annotation: ‘A Collection of Songs [made] when | I was in the Low = | = Countreys 1648’,<sup>5</sup> and contains the Italian motets and sacred songs that are the subject of this edition. Lynn Hulse has suggested that Locke may have been with Prince Charles at The Hague in 1648 and accompanied the Duke of Newcastle to Antwerp in early 1649.<sup>6</sup> It seems that it was while Locke was in the Low Countries that he converted to Catholicism.

Locke probably returned to England in the early 1650s and appears to have been based in Herefordshire. Around 1655 he married Mary, daughter of the Catholic recusant Roger Garnons of Herefordshire, and John Aubrey wrote that there was ‘a great friendship’ between Locke and the antiquary and amateur musician Silas Taylor, who was a Commonwealth sequestrator in Hereford.<sup>7</sup> In Spring 1654 a number of depositions cite Locke as ‘being a papist’ and having been involved in an affray in Hereford (another example of Locke’s bellicose behaviour!).<sup>8</sup> It seems that Locke moved to London sometime in the middle of the 1650s, and in 1656 John Playford published Matthew Locke his Little Consort of Three Parts (a revised version of music composed in 1651). Also in 1656, Locke composed some of the music for William Davenant’s The Siege of Rhodes, in which he performed the part of the Admiral of Rhodes, and he appears to have contributed music to Davenant’s The Cruelty of the Spaniards in Peru (?25 July 1658) and The History of Sir Francis Drake (?16 June 1659).<sup>9</sup> Locke also composed music for a performance of James Shirley’s masque Cupid and Death (first performed in 1653) in Leicester Fields in 1659 where he appears to have set a number of the original speeches to recitative.<sup>10</sup>

By the time of the Restoration Locke was acknowledged as one of the country’s leading composers and, perhaps as a result of his Royalist contacts whilst in the Low Countries in the late 1640s, his advancement at court was impressive: in June 1660 he was appointed Composer for the Violins with a salary of £46 10s 10d p.a. and Composer in the Private Musick for which he was paid £40 p.a.<sup>11</sup> As a Catholic he could not hold an official position in the Chapel Royal (although he wrote music for it in the 1660s) but, in 1662, he was appointed Organist in the (Catholic) chapel of Catherine of Braganza (which was based until 1671 at St James’s Palace and thereafter at Somerset House) with a salary of £100 p.a.<sup>12</sup> As composer in the Private Musick Locke’s duties were to provide music for the specialist group of musicians who played in the royal chambers at Whitehall, and his two Broken Consort suites (chamber music which mixed violins, bass viol and continuo instruments) typify his instrumental music in the early 1660s. His sacred vocal music was written for devotional contexts, for the Queen’s chapel, or for the Oxford Music School. In 1665, due to the plague in London, Locke went with the court to Oxford and there composed a ‘Prelude for 2 Violins and Bass Violl’ and a ‘Gloria Patri’ which were added to an already existing Jubilate, and the motet Ad te levavi oculos meos which were performed in the Music School on 9 and 16 November respectively;<sup>13</sup> and the two odes ‘All things their certain periods have’ (‘A New Yeares Song’) and ‘Come loyal hearts’ were performed before the king in Oxford on 1 January 1666.<sup>14</sup> Locke maintained a link with the Oxford Music School for the rest of his life (most likely through his court colleague Edward Lowe who, as well as being one of the three organist to the Chapel Royal, was Heather Professor of Music at Oxford 1661–82); in 1673 Locke was paid £5 for composing the ode Descende caelo cincta sororibus for the Oxford degree ceremony (the ‘Act’).<sup>15</sup>

On his return to London, and following a disastrous performance in the Chapel Royal of his setting of the Responses to the Ten Commandments (which, unusually, consists of ten separate settings rather than the usual repetitions of the same music), Locke published his Modern Church-Musick Pre-accus'd, Censur'd, and Obstructed in its Performance before His Majesty, Aprill i. 1666. Vindicated by the Author Matt. Lock, Composer in Ordinary to His Majesty. The publication included the music for the Responses and a rather defensive retort to the unfair criticism that his music was difficult. His reputation did not suffer, however, for later that year (on 14 August) his most adventurous symphony anthem, Be thou exalted, was performed in the Chapel to celebrate Albemarle's naval victory over the Dutch<sup>16</sup> and was proclaimed by Pepys as 'a special good Antheme'.<sup>17</sup>

Locke was also a music theorist, and his writings often revealed his quarrelsome nature. The objections to Thomas Salmon's proposed reform of notation<sup>18</sup> in Locke's Observations upon a Late Book, Entituled, an Essay to the Advancement of Musick (London, 1672) and The Present Practice of Musick Vindicated (London, 1673) were somewhat overstated, but his Melothesia, or, Certain General Rules for Playing upon a Continued-Bass (London, 1673), a publication that also included keyboard works by Locke and eight fellow composers, was of far more value, it being, according to Sir John Hawkins, 'the first book on the subject of thorough-bass published in England'.<sup>19</sup> Outside of his court activities, Locke was also involved with London's commercial theatres. He was the main house composer for the Duke of York's Company (at Lincoln's Inn Fields and, after 1671, at Dorset Garden), which was run by Sir William Davenant, and music by Locke survives for at least twelve productions, the most important being the self-contained Masque of Orpheus and Euridice for Elkanah Settle's The Empress of Morocco (3 July 1673), instrumental music for Thomas Shadwell's version of The Tempest (1674), and vocal and instrumental music for Shadwell's Psyche (27 February 1675). Locke's music for The Tempest and Psyche was published as The English Opera in 1675.

Locke died shortly before 10 August 1677 and his post as composer to the 24 Violins was taken by Henry Purcell. In the words of Robert Thompson, 'Locke's importance to English music in the generation before Purcell cannot be overestimated',<sup>20</sup> and, although there is no direct evidence that Locke taught the young Purcell, the influence of the older composer is not in doubt. On Locke's death Purcell composed the elegy What hope for us remains now he is gone? (Z.472). Locke made a distinct contribution to every genre of music: his consort music represents some of the glories of the English instrumental contrapuntal tradition, he excelled in the new expressive concertato-style of vocal writing in his declamatory songs and anthems, and his theatre works, and his large-scale anthems and motets blend elements of English and Italian stile antico and stile moderno.

BRITISH LIBRARY ADDITIONAL MANUSCRIPT 31437

Matthew Locke's highly accurate copies of Italian motets and sacred songs appear in the third section (ff. 29–43) of the composite autograph scorebook Lbl Add. 31437. The first section (ff. 1–19) contains three-voice English anthems/sacred songs and the second section (ff. 20–28) contains Latin motets, all by Locke. The paper of the Italian section (ff. 29–43) is larger than that of most music books of the time (c.310 x 199 mm), the staves are not rastrum ruled and the paper was probably ruled after it was originally bound. The watermark of the paper in this section of the manuscript is a paschal lamb (probably Angoumois) and is comparable to watermarks in Dutch sources dating from c.1648.<sup>21</sup> Comments written in the score by Philip Hayes (1738–97) confirm that in his time the Italian music was a separate manuscript. On the first folio Hayes wrote:

This manuscript is an original | of Matthew Lock, and contains | many of his own
productions – | which were given by himself | to the Musick School and on the first folio of the Italian section (f. 29) he wrote:

This Musick Book is in the hand writing of | Mr Mathew Lock, and seems to have | been selected from various printed works | of many excellent musicians, whose fame
| first began in the Low Countries, | where music in a great measure | had its Birth;
and from thence reach'd | Italy &c.

Hayes is correct that the motets and sacred songs were copied from printed sources (this is confirmed by Locke's annotations at the top of his transcriptions; all noted in the Textual Commentary), but he is incorrect that the point of origin of the music was the Low Countries and the music then made its way to Italy. It was the opposite: the music copied by Locke was all originally printed in Venetian publications which were then exported and often reprinted by the Phalèse printing house in Antwerp.<sup>22</sup>

THE PRINTED SOURCES

Pieces 1–5 are identified by Locke as 'Ex Opus tertium, liber primus, Galeatio Sabbatino', his copy source likely having been the Phalèse edition of 1642, the first edition of which was originally printed in Venice by Alessandro Vincenti in 1626. The next piece (6 'Salve meum salutare') was originally published in Sabbatini's Sacrarum Laudum Musicis Conceptibus ... Liber Secundus, Opus Septimum (Venice: Alessandro Vincenti, 1637) with Locke's source likely to have been the Phalèse reprint of 1641. Giovanni Rovetta's 'Dulcis Christe, ad te venio' (7) was first published in Motetti Concertati ... Opera Terza (Venice: Alessandro Vincenti, 1635) but Locke's annotation 'Ex Libro Quautor [sic] Joannem Rovetta' clearly indicates that this was copied from Ioannem Rovetta, Gemma Musicalis Diversis Cantionibus Sacris ... Liber Quartus (Antwerp: heirs of Petri Phalesii, 1641).<sup>23</sup> The other three pieces by Rovetta were first printed in Motetti Concertati ... Opera Quinta (Venice: Alessandro Vincenti, 1639) (8) and Motetti Concertati ... Libro Terzo ... Opera Decima (Venice: Alessandro Vincenti, 1647) (9–

<sup>21</sup> The first two sections of Lbl Add. MS 31437 were copied on paper that appears to be later than 1648; see Robert Thompson, 'English Music Manuscripts and the Fine Paper Trade, 1648–1688' (PhD thesis, King's College, University of London, 1988), pp. 387–94.

<sup>22</sup> On the Phalèse printing house, see Susan Bain and Henri Vanhulst, 'Phalèse', NG2, xix, pp. 545–9; and Maria Schildt, 'The Music Printers Madeleine and Marie Phalèse in Antwerp, 1629–1675', in Andrea Lindmayr-Brandl and Grantley McDonald (eds), Early Printed Music and Material Culture in Central and Western Europe (Abingdon and New York, 2021), pp. 176–203.

<sup>23</sup> RISM lists only an edition of 1649 (Antwerp: Magdalenam Phalesiam and co-heirs). The Cantus partbook of a 1641 edition (Antwerp: heirs of Petri Phalesii) appears in Google Books https://play.google.com/store/books/details/Giovanni\_Rovetta\_componist\_Gemma\_musicalis\_diversi?id=VcXfab0B3SsC&hl=en\_US&gl=US; enquiries were unsuccessful in revealing a provenance. The 1641 edition is not listed in Schildt, 'The Music Printer Madeleine and Marie Phalèse in Antwerp, 1629–1675'.

10) with Locke's copy sources most likely being Ioanne Rovetta, Motetta Concertata ... Opus Quintum (Antwerp: heirs of Petri Phalesii, 1640) and Ioanne Rovetta, Manipulus e Messe Musicus (Antwerp: heirs of Petri Phalesii, 1648) respectively. 'Anima mea liquefacta est' by Costanzo da Cosenza (11) is, according to Locke, 'Di F. Buonaventura di Rogliano alias Francesco Costanzo [da Cosenza]. Lib: Sec.<sup>d</sup>' but no copy of this printed source survives<sup>24</sup> and the version in Lbl Add. MS 31437 is therefore unique. It seems likely that the following piece, 'O Jesu mi dulcissime' (12), is from the same lost collection. Locke's copies of Italian music conclude with three solo-voice motets (13–15) from Galeazzo Sabbatini's Sacre Lodi Concerto a Voce Sola ... Opera Nona (Venice: Alessandro Vincenti, 1640); this publication was not reprinted in the Low Countries, and it is therefore likely that Locke had access to the 1640 Venetian print. It should also be noted that pieces 1, 4, 7 and 8 were published in Ambrosius Profe's Leipzig anthologies (1641–2),<sup>25</sup> but a comparison of readings indicates that these were not the sources for Locke's transcriptions.

THE COMPOSERS

Galeazzo Sabbatini (1597–1662) was a canon of Pesaro Cathedral from 1626 to 1630, and from 1630 to 1639 was maestro di cappella at the court of the Duke of Mirandola, before returning to Pesaro Cathedral in 1641. Between 1639 and 1641 he may have lived in Bergamo, and it is known that he visited Rome in 1652–3 and 1657–9. He composed both sacred and secular music in the new concertato styles and he was also a theorist, publishing a manual on continuo playing: Regola facile, e breve per sonare sopra il Basso Continuo nell'Organo, Manacordo, ò altro simile stromento (Venice, 1628).<sup>26</sup>

Giovanni Rovetta (1595/7–1668) appears to have spent his entire life in Venice as a musician at S Marco. He may have been a choirboy at S Marco (where his father was a violinist between 1614 and 1641) but the first documentary evidence of his career dates from 7 December 1614, when he was appointed to the permanent staff of instrumentalists. On 22 November 1627 he succeeded Alessandro Grandi as Monteverdi's assistant maestro di cappella and became maestro on 21 February 1644 in succession to Monteverdi. Although in the shadow of Monteverdi (who may well have been his teacher), Rovetta's works, both sacred and secular, do show a distinctive voice.<sup>27</sup>

Francesco Costanzo da Cosenza / F. Buonaventura di Rogliano (fl. 1621) is known only as the composer of Il Primo Libro delli Mottetti à Due, à Tre, & à Quattro. Con un Vespero, Hinni, Compieta, e Messa à Quattro, con il suo Basso Continuo (Naples: Costantino Vitale, 1621). Locke's copies in Lbl Add. 31437 add one or possibly two more works to the composer's output.<sup>28</sup>

<sup>24</sup> This should not be a surprise as the number of known lost printed sources or sources that survive as single examples is extensive: see Rudolf Rasch, 'How Much Is Lost, or Do We Know What We Don't Know? Observations on the Loss of Printed Music from the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries', in Giacomo Fornari (ed.), Album amicorum Albert Dunning in occasione del suo LXV compleanno (Turnhout, 2002), pp. 461–94.

EDITORIAL NOTES

PREFATORY STAVES

Original clefs, ‘key’-signatures and time-signatures are given on the prefatory staves, together with the first note of each part. The vocal ranges are given at the beginning of the first bar.

NOTE-VALUES AND BARRING

Original note-values are retained throughout except for final notes, where original longas are replaced with semibreves and fermate. Tied notes in the basso continuo (e.g., two tied minims rather than a semibreve), where they may represent an indication to change chord, are retained. Dots required in modern notation to indicate perfection are added tacitly. Barlines basically follow the primary source but are added or regularized as necessary.

ACCIDENTALS

Sharps and flats used originally as naturals are modernized (i.e., replaced by naturals). Accidentals added editorially are printed in small type, including those necessitated by cancellations within the bar, cautionary accidentals, and those suggested by musica ficta considerations. (The context will make it clear to which of these categories any one editorial accidental belongs.) Editorial accidentals are effective to the end of the bar in which they occur, and source accidentals are regarded as applying also to immediate repetitions. Original accidentals that are redundant in a modern barred edition have been omitted without comment.

BASSO CONTINUO FIGURING

The figuring indicated here is that of the primary source, but sharps and flats used as naturals are modernized (i.e., replaced by naturals). No attempt has been made to supplement the figuring other than in those instances where the omission of an accidental to an explicit figure renders the original figuring inconsistent with the vocal part(s). Redundant accidentals have been omitted without comment.

OTHER NOTATIONAL FEATURES

Beaming has been modernized and regularized throughout. Ties and slurs are original, and any editorial additions are indicated by dashes. Original ligatures are identified by closed horizontal brackets above the relevant notes, and coloration is indicated with open horizontal brackets.

TEXTS

Orthography follows the primary source excepting the modernizing of i as j and v as u, as appropriate, with modernization applied sparingly and abbreviations tacitly spelled out. Capitalization and punctuation are, however, regularized. Where the text is inconsistent between parts or sections of a piece, the edition follows the most predominant reading. Italic text is used where the source has iterum marks indicating repetition.

PERFORMANCE NOTES

The music copied by Matthew Locke in the third fascicle of Lbl Add. MS 31437 was originally composed in Italy where it would have been performed in churches, cathedrals and devotional settings; it was then disseminated to the Low Countries where much of it was reissued to be performed devotionally and, in Catholic circles, in church services. Locke made his scores from printed partbooks in the Low Countries and then took them back to England where the music may have been performed by the musicians of the Catholic queen, Catherine of Braganza, in devotional contexts. The performance opportunities for the repertoire in this edition were thus varied and comments on performance practice can therefore only be general. However, I would suggest that the manner of performance, wherever, would have been dominated by Italianate methods.

Given the soloistic lines of the motets, it is likely that they were performed with one voice to a part, and, in that they were probably performed by experienced professional singers, the performers would undoubtedly have added appropriate ornamentation such as the trillo (repeated throat articulations on a single note), gruppo (the equivalent of the modern neighbouring-note trill) and other passaggi (scales and figures) – indeed, the ubiquitous ‘t.’ sign appears in a number of pieces indicating ornamentation. The singers who performed this music were virtuosi who probably sang in a far lighter and more flexible way than operatically trained singers today.<sup>29</sup> In a liturgical setting the upper voice parts would have been taken by boys, falsettists or even castrati, but in a domestic-devotional situation women may have taken the Canto and, possibly, Alto parts. However, the tessitura of the Alto parts also make it possible that they were performed by high tenors.

The most appropriate continuo instrument for the sacred vocal music in this collection is the organ (even in da camera performances), although it is quite possible that the organ would have been joined by a plucked instrument such as the chitarrone.<sup>30</sup> In that seventeenth-century performance was characterized by its variety and freedom, modern performers should feel free to use other continuo instruments as appropriate.

One further point concerning performance needs to be noted: the relationship between sections of duple and triple metre. This is a complex issue and just how strictly proportional signs were adhered to during the period 1600–50 is still the subject of much debate.<sup>31</sup> In this edition the relationship between duple and triple sections is suggested in square brackets at the point of change, but performers should not feel the need to slavishly adhere to these proportional relationships but, rather, allow the tempo of each section to be determined in relation to the affect of the text and the general speed of movement which allows for the comfortable declamation of the words.

SOURCES

PRIMARY SOURCE

Lbl Add. 31437

London, British Library

Additional MS 31,437: Matthew Locke's autograph scorebook (originally in three separate sections);<sup>1</sup> the first and second sections were copied c.1654–62 (with revisions and additions perhaps as late as the 1670s); according to a note on f.1 (which seems to refer to the first section of the manuscript alone), written by Philip Hayes, the manuscript was donated to the Oxford Music School by Locke himself; the third section was copied 'when I [Locke] was in the Low-Countreys 1648'. See Rosamond E.M. Harding, A Thematic Catalogue of the Works of Matthew Locke (Oxford, 1971), 3–6, 20–5; and Robert Thompson, 'English Music Manuscripts and the Fine Paper Trade, 1648–1688' (PhD thesis, King's College, London, 1988), 387–94. Contains nos. 1–15.

Och Mus. 8

Oxford, Christ Church

Mus. 8: A composite manuscript of scores, copied in five layers; assembled and bound probably in the late seventeenth or early eighteenth century. Rovetta's 'Dulcis Christe, ad te venio' appears in the fourth layer copied by Francis Wity in the late seventeenth century and was probably copied from the printed copy of Rovetta's Gemma Musicalis (1649) now bound as Och Mus. 887–92(7). See John Milson, Christ Church Library Music Catalogue <http://library.chch.ox.ac.uk/music/page.php?set=Mus.+8>. Contains 7.

TEXTUAL COMMENTARY

The following abbreviations are used in the Textual Commentary:

PART NAMES	C	Cantus
	A	Alto
	T	Tenor
	B	Bass
	bc	Basso Continuo
NOTE VALUES	b	breve
	s	semibreve
	s-rest	semibreve rest (etc.)
	m	minim
	m.	dotted minim (etc.)
	c	crotchet
	q	quaver
	sq	semiquaver
PITCH	Pitch names are given in the Helmholtz system: C–B, c–b, c'–b', c"–b" (c' = middle C).
	#, b: if functioning as a natural, are shown in the Commentary as ‡.
OTHERS	fig./figs	figure/figures
	k-s	'key'-signature
	o	no accidental(s) in source
	om	omitted
	sl	slur(red)
	t	tie(d)
	t-s	time signature
SYSTEM OF REFERENCE	References take the form: bar number, number of symbol (note or rest) within the bar indicated as a superscript arabic numeral (a note tied across from the previous bar counts as <sup>1</sup> in the new bar), the part name (and if necessary the feature which is signalled), the error or variant in the source(s) indicated. If no source is shown, the variant applies to all the relevant sources. Thus:
	13 <sup>2</sup> T: o would indicate that the accidental is omitted on the second symbol of bar 13 of the tenor part in the source(s) indicated; and 5 <sup>1-2</sup> bc: ca cg# would indicate that the first two symbols of the fifth bar of the basso continuo part are a crotchet 'tenor' A and a crotchet 'tenor' G- sharp in the source(s) indicated.

1

Jesu Domine, Jesu pie, Jesu misericors,
qui venisti in mundum peccatores salvos
facere.
Te rogamus, te suppliciter deprecamur,
parce peccatis, parce iniquitates nostras,
parce ut tibi possimus perpetuo famulari.
Audi, Deus noster, audi, lumen oculorum
nostrorum, audi, O dulcis Christe, O care Jesu, O clemens Pater, O pie Deus, audi preces nostras, quas fundimus;
ne efficiaris nobis inexorabilis,
sed propter bonitatem tuam,
suscipte preces nostras, care Jesu,
suscipte preces, suscipte preces nostras.

Lord Jesus, loving Jesus, merciful Jesus,
who came into the world to save sinners;

we beg you, we humbly beseech you,
spare our sins, spare our wickednesses,
spare us that we may serve you eternally.
Hear, our God, hear, light of our eyes,
hear, sweet Christ, dear Jesus, merciful Father, loving God,
hear our prayers that we pour out; do not become deaf to our entreaties but for your goodness' sake receive our prayers, dear Jesus, receive our prayers, receive our prayers.

2

O verum Christi corpus pro nobis
immolatum.
O sanguis Christi per te salus, per te vita,
et redemptio nostra.
Eia venite fideles, fideles venite ad
Dominum.
Pium JESUM Christum rogate dulciter ut
nos omnes salvet.

True body of Christ, sacrificed for us.

Blood of Christ, by you is salvation, by you is life and our redemption.
Come, come you faithful, come you
faithful to the Lord;
sweetly beg the loving Jesus Christ that he may save us all.

3

Dominus Jesus in qua nocte tradebatur acceptit panem, et gratias agens fregit, et dixit:
Accipite, et manducate:
Hoc est enim corpus meum, quod pro
vobis tradetur:
Hoc facite in meam commemorationem.

The Lord Jesus, in the night that he was betrayed, took bread, and giving thanks he broke it, and said:
Take, and eat:
for this is my body, which is given for
you:
do this in recollection of me.

4

O nomen Jesu, nomen dulce, nomen delectabile, nomen confortans.

Quid est Jesus nisi Salvator?
 Invoke, O bone Jesu,
 O dulcissime Jesu, suavissime Jesu,
 ne perdat me iniquitas mea, quem fecit
 omnipotens bonitas tua,
 O benignissime Jesu.
 In hora mortis meae suscipe me,
 humiliter veniam petentem et hoc nomen
 sanctum invocantem.
 O Jesu, O nomen dulce, O nomen
 delectabile, O nomen Jesu, nomen confortans, conforta me, miserere mei, O
 pie Jesu, salva me.

Name of Jesus, sweet name, name of loveliness, name that strengthens and consoles.

What is Jesus but our Saviour?
 Call upon him: Good Jesus,
 sweetest Jesus, gentlest Jesus,
 let my wickedness not destroy me, whom your almighty goodness has created,
 most kindly Jesus.

In the hour of my death receive me who humbly beg forgiveness and call upon this holy name.

Name of Jesus, sweet name, name of loveliness, name of Jesus, name that strengthens and consoles, strengthen and console me, have mercy on me, loving Jesus, save me.

5

O clementissime Domine,
 O jucundissime et suavissime Jesu,
 O altissime Fili, Deus et homo,
 crucifixus propter hominem.
 Exaudi me et miserere mihi Jesu pie.

O incomprehensa bonitas,
 O ardens desiderium, ad quem ego fugiam,
 nisi ad te vadam? si tu me eiicis,
 quis me recipiet? si tu me despicias,
 quis me aspiciet? si iratus fueris contra
 me, quem adjutorem quaeram?
 Recordare Domine creaturae tuae quam tu
 ex nihilo fecisti, et precioso sanguine redemisti.
 Exaudi me, et propitius esto peccatis
 nostris.

Most merciful Lord,
 most lovely and gentle Jesus,
 most high Son, God and man,
 crucified for mankind;
 hear me and have mercy on me, loving Jesus.

Unfathomable goodness,
 burning desire: to whom shall I flee if I do not come to you? If you cast me out, who will take me in? If you despise me, who will look at me? If you will be angry at me, whom shall I seek to help me?

Remember, Lord, your creature whom you made out of nothing, and redeemed with your precious blood.

Hear me, and be merciful towards our sins.

Salve meum salutare,
salve Jesu care,
salve meum gaudium,
O Christe mi dulcissime.
Salve Rex sanctorum,
salve O spes peccatorum,
salve verum Christi corpus ex Maria
natum.
Salve Deus meus, salve amor meus,
salve salus mea, salve vita mea,
salva viva caro, salve sanguis vere,
nobis miserere, O dulcis Pater pauperum,
tuorum memor vulnerum, exaudi nos,
O Christe salutaris noster, et propitius esto
peccatis nostris.

7

Dulcis Christe, ad te venio, quia igne tuo
ardeo, bone Jesu ad te propero, quia amore
tuo langueo.
Occurre Domine, et in castissima brachia
tua me constringe, et oscula tua sancta
sentiant labia mea.
Tibi soli vivimus, ad te solum suspiramus,
in te solum respiramus.
Jesu benigne tu sis gloria mea,
tu sis exaltatio cordis mei, tu sis amor
meus, tu sis tota dilectio animae meae;
tolle ergo suavissime Domine cor meum,
et tecum maneat in aeternum.

8

Domine Deus meus peccavi graviter coram te, peccavi et declinavi miser a te,
sed nunc detestor improbitatem meam,
atque peccata mea.
Parce mihi clementissime Deus,
et oculorum rivos salientes
ah, respice benignus emanantis signum mei doloris.

Hail, my salvation,
hail, dear Jesus,
hail, my joy,
my sweetest Christ.
Hail, King of the saints,
hail, hope of sinners,
hail, true body of Christ, born of Mary.

Hail, my God, hail my love,
hail my salvation, hail my life,
hail the living flesh, hail the blood in truth,
have mercy on us, sweet Father of the poor, be mindful of your wounds, hear us,
Christ our salvation, and be merciful
towards our sins.

Sweet Christ, to you I come, for I burn
with your fire; good Jesus, to you I hasten,
for I am sick with your love.
Come to me, Lord, and hold me tight in your most chaste arms, and let my lips feel your holy kisses.
For you alone we live, to you alone we sigh, in you alone we recover our breath.
Kindly Jesus, may you be my glory, may you be the exaltation of my heart, may you be my love, may you be the whole delight
of my soul; and so, sweetest Lord, take up my heart and let it remain with you forever.

Lord, my God, I have sinned grievously in your sight, I have sinned and have like a wretch fallen from you, but now I forswear my wickedness, and my sins.
Spare me, most merciful God,
and look kindly on the flowing streams of my eyes, ah, the sign of my sorrow as it springs.

eamus ad hanc mensam,
et comedamus panem, et bibamus vinum.
O dulcis cibus,
O viva mundi,
O satietis salutaris,
O vinum delectabile,
O sanguis Christi,
O ebrietas faelix,
eamus comedamus et bibamus.
Ecce Dominus posuit mensam et miscuit
vinum.
O magnum pietatis mysterium,
O caeleste, O venerabile sacramentum,
O magnum sacramentum.

See, the Lord has laid a table and mixed
wine;
great mystery of holy love, heavenly
sacrament and worthy of worship:
let us go then to this table full of delights,

let us go and eat the bread
which brings joy to kings,
let us go and drink the wine
which the Lord has mixed for us,
let us go to that table
and eat the bread and drink the wine.
Sweet food,
the world's living sustenance,
saving fullness,
delightful wine,
blood of Christ,
blessed intoxication,
let us eat and drink.

See, the Lord has laid a table and mixed
wine;
great mystery of holy love,
heavenly sacrament and worthy of worship, mighty sacrament.

Salve Regina, Mater misericordiae,
vida, dulcedo, et spes nostra, salve.
Ad te clamamus exsules filii Evae,
Ad te suspiramus, gementes et flentes
in hac lacrymarum valle.
Eia, ergo, advocata nostra, illos tuos
misericordes oculos ad nos converte;
et Jesum benedictum fructum ventris tui,
nobis post hoc exilium ostende.
O clemens, O pia, O dulcis Virgo Maria.

Hail, Queen, Mother of mercy,
our life, sweetness and hope, hail.
To you we exiled sons of Eve cry out,
to you we sigh, groaning and weeping
in this vale of tears.
Come then, our advocate, turn your merciful eyes towards us;
and after this exile show us Jesus, the blessed fruit of your womb.
Merciful, loving, sweet Virgin Mary.

Anima mea liquefacta est, ut dilectus
locutus est;
quaesivi, et non inveni illum;
vocavi, et non respondit mihi.
Invenerunt me custodes et vulneraverunt
me, tulerunt pallium meum.
Filiae Jerusalem, nuntiate dilecto meo quia
amore langueo.

My soul turned to water, when my beloved spoke;
I sought him and did not find him;
I called and he did not answer me.
The watchmen found me and wounded
me, they took away my cloak.
Daughters of Jerusalem, tell my beloved
that I am sick with love.

O Jesu mi dulcissime,
Spes suspirantis animae!
Te quaerunt piae lacrimae,
Te clamor mentis intimae.

Jesus, my sweetest one,
hope of a sighing soul!
Holy tears seek you, and the crying of the inward mind.

Secunda pars

Amor Jesu, dulcissimus
et vere suavissimus!
Plus millies gratissimus
quam dicere sufficimus.

Love of Jesus, sweetest
and truly most delightful,
a thousand times more lovely
than we have ability to say.

Congregavit Dominus aquas et vocavit
maria,
congregabo et ego lacrimas et vocabo
Mariam.
O Maria semper dulcis, semper pia.
Audi preces cum fletibus,
omnia flumina currunt ad mare,
et mare non redundat,
et peccatores omnes recurrent ad Mariam,
et Maria neminem repellit.

The Lord gathered the waters and called
the seas;
I too will gather my tears and call on Mary.
Mary, ever sweet, ever loving, hear my prayers with tears.
All rivers run to the sea and the sea does
not overflow,
and all sinners run back to Mary and Mary
turns no one away.

O bone Jesu, O Jesu fili Mariae virginis,
plenus misericordia et pietate.
O dulcis Jesu miserere mei, secundum
magnam misericordiam tuam,
O benigne Jesu, te deprecor per illum
sanguinem preciosum tuum,
quem pro nobis miseris peccatoribus
effundere dignatus es in ara crucis:
ut abjicias omnes iniquitates meas,
et ne me despicias humiliter veniam
petentem, et hoc nomen sanctum tuum invocantem.
Hoc nomen Jesu nomen dulce est:
hoc nomen Jesu nomen salutare est.
Salva me O Jesu bone, ut te perfecte
diligam, tibi semper serviam,
et in te sit mea gloriatio.
Alleluia.

Good Jesus, Jesus son of the Virgin Mary,
full of mercy and love.
Sweet Jesus, have mercy on me according
to your great mercy;
kindly Jesus, I entreat you by your precious blood
which you deigned to pour out on the altar
of the cross for the sake of us wretched sinners that you may cast away all my wickednesses and not despise me as I humbly seek forgiveness and call upon this your holy name.
This name, the name of Jesus, is sweet:
this name, the name of Jesus, is salvation.
Save me, good Jesus, that I may love you perfectly, may ever serve you, and that my glorying may be in you.
Alleluia.

Jesum quaeram in lectulo,
 Clauso cordis cubiculo:
 Privatum et in publico
 Quaeram amore sedulo.

Tumbam perfundam fletibus,
 Locum replens gemitibus,
 Jesu provolvar pedibus,
 Strictis haerens amplexibus.

Jesu rex admirabilis;
 Et triumphator nobilis:
 Dulcedo ineffabilis,
 Totus desiderabilis.

Mane nobiscum Domine,
 Et nos illustra lumine,
 Pulsa mentis caliginem,
 Mundum replens dulcedine.

Quando cor nostrum visitas,
 Tunc ei lucet veritas,
 Mundi vilescit vanitas
 Et intus fervet caritas.

I will seek Jesus on my bed,
 in the closet of my heart;
 privately and in public I will seek him
 with untiring love.

I will cover his tomb with tears,
 filling the place with sighs,
 I will cast myself at Jesus' feet,
 clinging to him in a tight embrace.

Jesus, wonderful king
 and noble victor,
 ineffable sweetness,
 wholly to be desired.

Bide with us, Lord,
 and enlighten us with light,
 drive away the darkness of our heart and mind, filling the world with sweetness.

When you visit our hearts,
 then does truth shine in them,
 the world's vanity becomes worthless
 and love burns within.
