A template to support working group reporting

Guide to using this template:

- Pages 2-5 remind us the names of the working groups and their aims
- Pages 6-10 should be used to start the reporting to remind the group which working group is speaking
- Pages 11-12 can be introduction slides
- Pages 13-18 are the suggested topics to report back on.

Working Group 1:

Create a guide on what works well for inclusion

No Research About Us Without Us

No Research About Us Without Us

Working Group 3:

Re-write two research projects

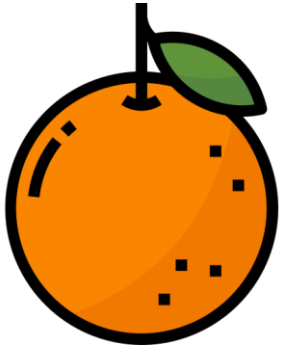
No Research About Us Without Us

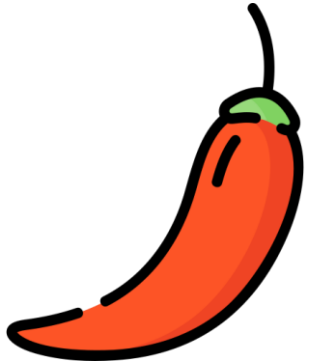
Working Group 4:
Evaluating co-working and this project

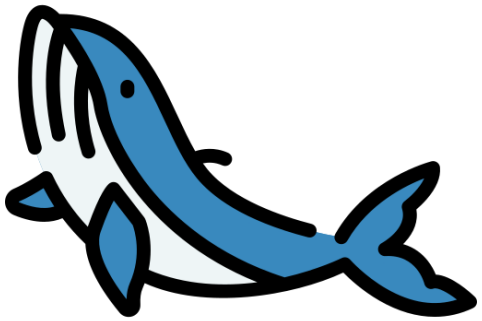
No Research About Us Without Us

Working group icons...

No Research About Us Without Us







Working Group 1: Blue

Working Group 2: Red

Working Group 3: Orange

Working Group 4: Green

Working Group update

Presentation text

Presentation text

Report progress:

what we have done so far

Report progress: adjustments made to the way we are working

Challenges: what could be better in the way we are working

Advice: the things we need from the bigger team

Reflection: our learning so far

No Research About Us Without Us

Plans for the future of the working group: what is next?

A template to support working group reporting: No Research About Us Without Us

We have created a template to support smaller working groups in a project report to the main team. The template includes questions about challenges for inclusion and prompts to report on reasonable adjustments the team has made.

It provokes reflection in the team about how inclusive their workstream is and what can be improved.

Amy M. Russell, Gary Bourlet, Deborah Cairns, Anna Balding, Maximilian Clark, Rachel Royston, Anna Marriott, Samantha Clark, Paul Charlton, Susan Buell, Jodie Bradley, Victoria Farnsworth, Geoff Doncaster, Hannah Stansfield, Aristotelis Mazarot, Katharine Fowler, Jyothika Kumar, Angela Henderson, Victoria Shepherd, Vaso Totsika. (2025); https://doi.org/10.48785/100/404